

'The Glades' Brings Police Drama to South Florida—filmed in NANA at the Old North Ridge Hospital (corner of Dixie Hwy and Ne 58 Street)...fyi

The Glades, a police drama set to premiere July 11 on A&E (10 p.m. EDT), follows a Chicago detective who relocates to South Florida, expecting to slide into a cushy job with plenty of time to hit the beaches and golf courses. But he quickly realizes that life isn't going to be as simple or as relaxing as he thought it would be.

Besides being set in South Florida, the show is filmed in the Fort Lauderdale area — most Florida-themed shows, like 'CSI: Miami,' are filmed primarily in California. The USA Network's 'Burn Notice,' which recently began shooting its fourth season in Miami, is the only other show filmed totally in Florida.

Clifton's South Florida — for the purposes of the show — is the fictional town of Palm Glade. As a detective with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, the show's protagonist covers an area that includes beautiful beaches and gator-infested swamps.

By filming in South Florida, Campbell said the environment will be like another character on the show. Soundstages were built in an industrial space in Pembroke Park, a Fort Lauderdale suburb, but Campbell said they generally shoot outside on location five days a week.

Click for details and short films <http://www.fancast.com/blogs/2010/tv-news/the-glades-brings-police-drama-to-south-florida/>

